

Abstract

A method comprising the steps of setting a language for an application, registering components on a list of listeners when the components are to be displayed by the application, wherein the components have a language setting, changing the language setting of each component on the list of listeners to the language for the application when the language setting is different from the language for the application and displaying the components in the language for the application.

1004334001